Santo is a CFP-certified professional with nearly a decade of industry experience. His expertise lies in helping investment advisors understand the strategic role financial products can play within various financial-planning contexts. Committed to fiduciary standards, Santo provides training and best practices to financial professionals to help them guide their clients toward their goals.

Santo attended the University of Nebraska, where he was captain of the Lacrosse Club team for three years and served as the club President during his final year. Santo, his wife, and their two children live in Omaha, Nebraska, where they balance the magic and chaos of toddlerhood, enjoy weekly spaghetti dinners with their extended Italian family, and get away on snowmobiles in the winter.
