Ask Eric about the many kinds of aircraft he's flown and what he intends to learn to fly next.

As a managing director for Pacific Life, Eric specializes in bringing planning strategies to fee-based advisors in the Central United States. He has spent the past five years working closely with RIA firms to help them incorporate insurance strategies into their clients' financial plans.

During his 20-plus years of experience in the financial services industry, Eric has worked as a financial advisor, annuity wholesaler, sales trainer and coach, sales team manager, sales desk director, and RIA Concierge Desk director. His background in retirement planning, the RIA industry, and annuity distribution fuels his ability to help others achieve their financial objectives.

Eric graduated from Brigham Young University and earned an MBA from Utah State University. As the son of an Air Force pilot, he has lived in many fun places but currently calls Omaha, Nebraska, home. Eric also has a pilot's license and enjoys soaring through the skies every chance he gets. His other passions include playing the piano, volunteering at his church, and watching football. His number one priority in life, however, is to be the best husband and father he can be. Eric has been married to his wife, Jenna, for more than 26 years, and they have four children.
