With more than 10 years of experience in the advisory insurance market, Marcus has been a trusted resource for information about annuities and helping advisors find the strategies that complement their clients' financial plans.

Prior to bringing his financial knowledge to Pacific Life, Marcus worked in wholesaling, customer service, and management roles. Having primarily worked with RIAs and fee-based advisors, he understands the challenges they face and offers an experienced perspective about how annuities can fit into the advisory business model in today's changing landscape.

Marcus graduated from Purdue University in West Lafayette, Indiana, with a degree in financial planning. He lives in Ypsilanti, Michigan (outside of Ann Arbor), with his wife, son, and two Australian shepherds, Norman and Bentley. Marcus also lived in Louisville, Kentucky, for almost a decade. He is an avid Purdue Boilermakers, Indiana Pacers, and Indianapolis Colts fan. In his free time, he enjoys cycling and traveling to new places.
